Mentorship

My mentorship is delivered through a number of NIH funded research grants and the Centers that I direct and the mentorship programs at Columbia School of Social Work and Columbia University.

NIMH R25: Funded Training Program for Under-Represented Faculty
NIMH training program for underrepresented faculty: HIV Intervention Science Training Program for Under-represented New Investigators (HISTP) has strengthened universities, diversified HIV research, and elevated scholars of color across the country. Trained a total of 16 faculty (https://histp.columbia.edu/)

National Institute of Drug Abuse Pre- and Post-Doc Training Program: T32
The T32 Program provides training for the next generation of pre- and post-doctoral scholars in the prevention, treatment, and care of HIV and drug abuse among individuals in the criminal justice system with a strong emphasis on individuals involved in alternatives to incarceration and community supervision. A total of 20 pre and post-doctoral fellows are involved with this training program (http://cjhdt32.columbia.edu/)

Social Intervention Group, Training Opportunity Established in 1990 at Columbia School of Social Work
Social Intervention Group: Sponsors faculty training opportunities within the Social Intervention Group. Faculty are involved in training on the science of implementation research covering: health, mental illness, addiction, HIV, community and domestic violence. A total of 25 faculty are involved in SIG.
(https://sig.columbia.edu/https://sig.columbia.edu/)

Trained 20 faculty and students from Columbia University and other universities

CHOSEN was Established in 2020 to Provide Training Opportunities for Faculty and Students
The Columbia University's School of Social Work (CUSSW), Irving Medical Center's (CUIMC) Department of Psychiatry Division on Substance Use Disorders (DSUD), and the Irving Institute for Clinical and Translational Research, are deeply committed to addressing the national crisis of opioid and other substance use disorders. A total of 42 faculty fellows are affiliates of this Center. (https://chosen.columbia.edu/)
